October Festival Update & Submissions

As of today, we are planning our annual Litquake Festival, October 7 - 23, featuring both in-person and virtual events. Submissions will open May 17 - June 15 for Litquake Festival and Lit Crawl San Francisco.

In-Person Programs Update

While the Bay Area's public health outlook is improving and quickly, we're not ready to announce any in-person programs for the spring and summer. We are likely to remain virtual through July, and will also be updating you about our festival plans around that time. Believe us, we will be hosting in-person events again as soon as we can. We miss you! We miss each other!

Epicenter, a Virtual Series

In the meantime, we're hosting free, virtual events (almost) weekly starting this Wednesday and running through the early summer, featuring all kinds of local poets, novelists, and tinkerers. Here's the full schedule.

Regular check-ups have been missed during the COVID crisis...

... So it's time to think about booking an appointment, especially if you're a heavy drinker, a smoker, or someone with problems who used to visit the dentist regularly. If you're at all worried, talk to your dentist. Dental surgeries are COVID-secure and it's important to catch serious problems early when treatments are more effective.

carjackers appear out of nowhere. They jump into your car and take off, practically mowing you down.

And you ladies, I bet your purse is still in the car!

So now the carjacker has your car, your home address, your money, and your keys. Your home and your whole identity are now compromised!

If you see a piece of paper stuck to your back window, just get the heck out of there. Just drive away! Deal with it later.

Please forward this to your friends and family.
