From the drafts in our homes to the cars we drive, there are several actions that we can all take to substantially reduce the carbon footprint from our daily activities. MCE is helping residents and multifamily property owners do just that through the energy efficiency, electric vehicle, and solar programs.

50 Fun Things to Do at Home This Month \(That Don't Require Any Outdoor Space\)

Even if you're someone like me who prefers the cool, crisp air of October to the heat and humidity of July, it's hard to deny that there's something magical about summer. Lounging in a pool with your elbows propped up on the edge, holding a book in one hand and a drink in the other. Hanging out at the beach with your closest family and friends. Taking vacations to tropical locations. Except ... most of us aren't doing any of that this summer. In fact, if you live somewhere without any outdoor space, COVID-19 means that you're probably spending almost all your time indoors this summer. And if you aren't lucky enough to have a patio or backyard, it can feel limiting, to say the very least. It also means that it's time to get creative about how you spend your free time.
