"If you love the Bay Area, then I think you have to love its artists!"

— Mark Harris, The de Young Open artist

Join us in supporting Bay Area arts communities by learning about some of the amazing artists in The de Young Open. Below, we've resurfaced video recordings of our favorite artist panels and talks for you to enjoy.

While the de Young is temporarily closed, we encourage you to use our web gallery to discover the over 800 works in the exhibition and to read notes from the artists themselves. Spread the joy by sharing what you love with a friend.

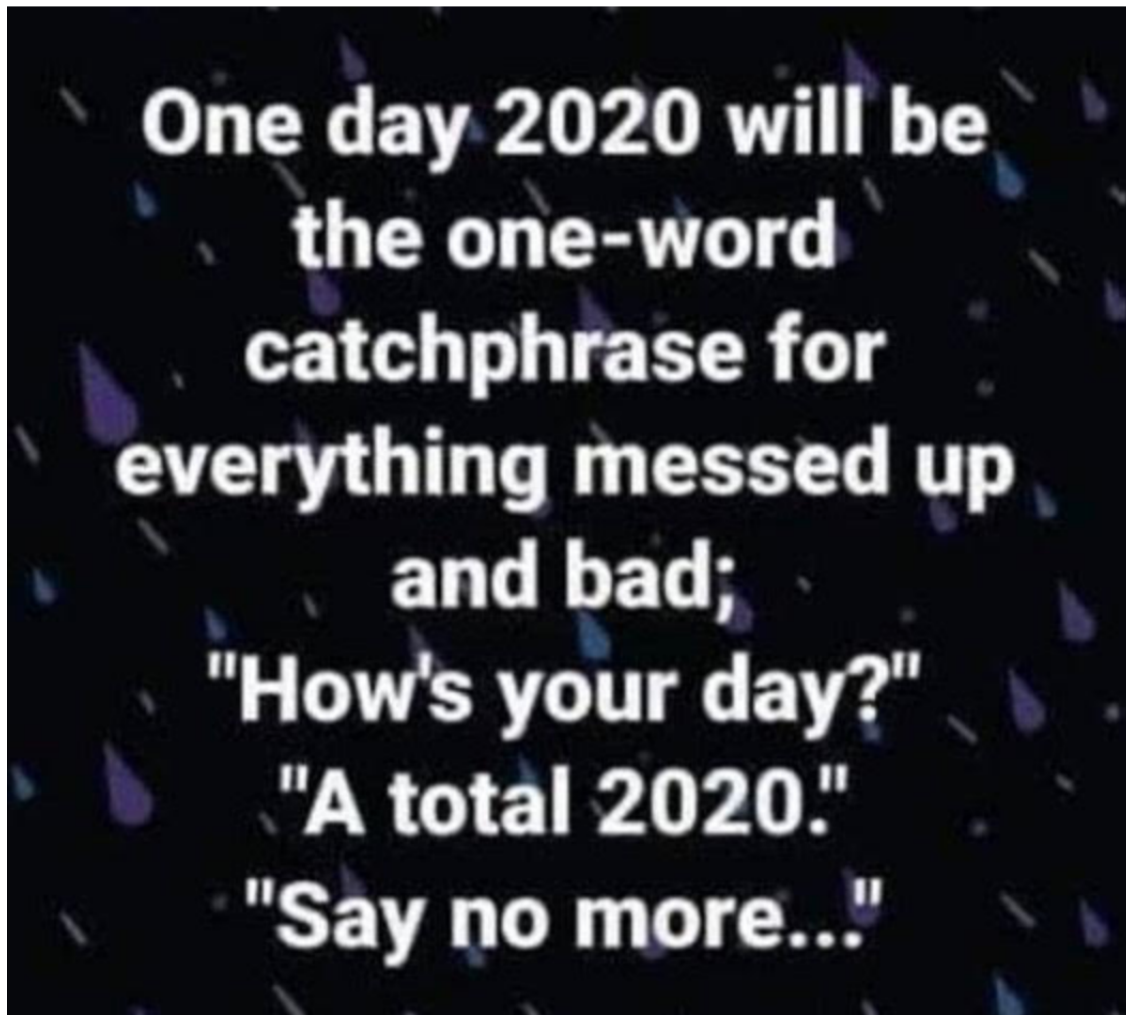

The de Young Open fills our hearts with gratitude. We hope it continues to provide connection, meaning, and inspiration during these challenging times. Watch our participating artists inaugurate The de Young Open back in October and reflect on seeing their works on our gallery walls.

Journey to secluded Churchill, Manitoba on this virtual tour

The tiny community of Churchill on the shores of Hudson Bay may not have a big human population (less than 1,000 people), but its polar bear population ranks among the largest in the world. Experience why the Polar Bear Capital of the World makes such an appealing four-seasons destination through these 18 photos.

An Undulating Sculpture Recreates Hokusai's 'Great Wave' in 50,000 LEGO Pieces

Japan-based artist Jumpei Mitsui is one of just 21 LEGO Certified Professionals in the world—this means his full-time job is to create artworks with the plastic building blocks—and is the youngest of the renowned group. He's fulfilled this title most recently with a sculptural recreation of Katsushika Hokusai's "The Great Wave off Kanagawa." During the course of 400 hours, Mitsui snapped together 50,000 cobalt and white LEGO into an undulating wave that mimics the original woodblock print.
